CINCINNATI, Ohio – Graeter's is expanding to Northern Ohio. The nationally renowned favorite ice cream of Oprah Winfrey and Sarah Jessica Parker will now be available in ACME stores throughout Northern Ohio.

Graeter's irresistible ice cream is produced just two gallons at a time using the traditional French Pot Process and a family recipe handed down through four generations. The dense, creamy texture of Graeter's ice cream combined with its signature, giant, melt-in-your-mouth chocolate chips make this ice cream a taste experience like no other. To introduce Northern Ohioans to this irresistible ice cream, Graeter's will be offering free samples from 11 – 4 pm at the following two locations:

- 6/14/08- 116 West Streetsboro, Hudson
- 6/15/08- 1474 N Main, North Canton

As one of the oldest family-owned ice cream makers in the country, Graeter's is proud of its humble heartland beginnings. Sold out of the front room of their Cincinnati home, Louis and Regina Graeter began making ice cream and chocolate confections in the late 1800s. Regina continued to grow the business after her husband's death, until her sons took over and subsequently passed it down to their children. In 2004, the fourth generation of the Graeter family took ownership of the 134 year-old ice cream company.

Graeter's ice cream is still made today the way Louis made it when he founded Graeter's, and is loved by people all over the country. Celebrities who have touted their love of Graeter's delicious ice cream include: George Clooney, Marvin Hamlisch, Bobby Flay, and David Letterman, among others.
